

OT in Pediatric Primary Care

Abstract:

This session described a program where licensed occupational therapists and master's level OT students provide free developmental screenings to infants and young children in local pediatric medical practice. Strategies for developing relationships and bridging communication between occupational therapists, primary practice physicians, and families were reviewed.